

others metallic gasket K02 - convex sealing ring gasket spec

description

it is a very good gasket when is need to reduce contact area of solid metal gaskets with roughly parallel sealing surfaces. first contact between gasket and sealing surfaces is in one point. but when the bolt load increase the touched surface is increase and the cross section of gasket is changing by plastically deformation. these gaskets are suitable for very high pressure application, but they need very good finishing the sealing surface.